

Morning

As the whistles of wind swirled through the trees
The leaves marinating in the water as the drops tumbled down.

The swinging branches blowing back and forth
Hearing the howls as the moon disappears amongst the cloud-less sky Feeling the warmth from the sun.
Morning has come once again.

-Tim Glotstein